Introduction

AS PART OF OUR CONTINUOUS EFFORTS TO SUPPORT INTERCULTURAL AND INCLUSIVE EDUCATION, WE ARE DELIGHTED TO PRESENT THIS LEARNING RESOURCE FOR USE IN CLASSROOMS AROUND THE COUNTRY. THIS HANDBOOK IS BASED ON THE BELIEF THAT THROUGH INCLUSIVE EDUCATION, EDUCATORS CAN DEVELOP A GREATER UNDERSTANDING OF THE IMPORTANT THINGS TO CONSIDER WHEN WORKING ALONGSIDE ALL CHILDREN (TYAGI, 2016).

The main aim of this handbook is to support educators in all sectors of the education system by providing helpful information about teacher training programmes, supports and resources pertaining to the Travelling Community and Traveller culture so that collectively we can create more change towards inclusive education in every classroom. We hope that this handbook will support you, your school or college, and create opportunities for us to learn and grow together.

Why

It's Needed:

The Irish Travelling Community are a minority group that have and continue to encounter many forms of social exclusion across a wide range of contexts. These include but are not limited to; access to employment, access to health services, and experiences of poor educational progression. Research findings have highlighted the need for Traveller ethnicity, culture and unique traditions to be acknowledged, included, explored and supported in the Irish Education system (Forkan, 2006; Hamilton et al., 2012). It is crucial for educators that an inclusive and positive learning environment is created through the development of a learning space for the mutual engagement of all that simultaneously prevents minority groups from being silenced by a single dominant discourse (Kennedy et al., 2005). To do so effectively requires the awareness of the many socio-cultural and economic factors which influence educational disadvantage for Irish Travellers (Brookfield, 2017). This includes acknowledging the ways in which the Irish education system has evolved, historically and culturally to the present moment, and the ways in which the curriculum, classroom practices and organisation of learning contribute greatly to the reproduction of class inequalities, further marginalising groups like the Travelling Community.

Author | Annmarie Collins

As a teacher, I know how crucial a role we play in shaping the lives of young people. Through our work we can inspire, motivate, and encourage children and students to be passionate about learning. I also know that our role comes with challenges as we try to manage busy curriculums while also acting as role models, mentors, and caregivers. With that in mind, I wanted to create a resource that helps us in our busy role by providing us with quick access to positive and useful resources about the Travelling Community that we can use in the classroom. My inspiration for this comes from my own experiences with educators who allowed and encouraged me to share the culture and traditions of the Travelling Community in a variety of subjects, as well as my own teacher training in Marino Institute of Education. I hope that both the positive and challenging learning in this resource can assist us as educators in our work and in developing our understanding of the needs and the potential of learners from the Travelling Community. If you have anything that you feel might be beneficial to this resource, please do not hesitate to share your ideas with me through the following email: collinsa@outlook.ie

How to Use This Handbook

When designing and creating this handbook we wanted to keep it simple and accessible. The handbook features different sections that aim to guide you to information about the Travelling Community and members of the community from across the country to inspire you. The following are the various sections of the handbook:

THE IRISH TRAVELLING COMMUNITY

In this Section, readers will get a brief introduction to the history of the Travelling Community and the difficulties many Travellers encounter in education. This section is not intended to give an in-depth insight into the community; rather, it will introduce the history of the Travelling community to those who may be unfamiliar with the community. This section also aims to encourage further exploration of the community through various readings in the reading section of this handbook.

READINGS

In this section, educators will be introduced to a variety of readings, ranging from newspaper articles to critical research and children's books about the Travelling Community. This section may prove useful in classroom activities such as storytelling or as useful resources in a variety of subjects like SPHE and History. Some readings include success stories which can be beneficial for teachers and Career Guidance by introducing Traveller students to role models within the community, and to the idea of unlocking their own potential. This section can also help us to better understand our education system through the lens of negative personal experiences of Traveller students and provide us with different perspectives on power dynamics and the responsible exercise of authority as educators. These readings aim to encourage educators to reflect on their teaching and explore or create new teaching approaches that seek to gain maximum success for both them and their learners from the Travelling Community.

SOCIAL MEDIA

In this section, educators will be provided with links to the social media accounts of various Traveller activists and organisations. Many of us are now turning to social media platforms to get news and information. Social media also gives a voice to underrepresented groups like the Travelling Community, by promoting awareness and showing solidarity. Educators are encouraged to offer their support and follow a page or Traveller activist they admire. These links may also prove useful for educators working with teenagers and adults from the Travelling Community.

TRAVELLERS IN MUSIC, ART AND SPORT

This section provides information and links to the many inspirational and talented members of the Travelling Community who have contributed their talents in the areas of Music, Art, Film and Sport. These may prove useful in bringing the talents of Travellers into these subjects and activities in the classroom.

TEACHER TRAINING IN TRAVELLER CULTURE

This section offers information and links to various programmes available for those who may want to learn more about the Travelling Community, their culture and traditions.

TRAVELLER ORGANISATIONS BY COUNTY AND ACCESS OFFICES BY UNIVERSITY AND IT

This section lists the contact details of the many Traveller organisations nationwide. Building a connection with these organisations is often a good way of staying up to date on local events and/or supports that may be available to the Traveller students across different age groups in classrooms. This section also includes the contact details of the Access Departments in various universities and institutes nationwide. These contacts may prove useful to those who may want to learn about access routes for students from the Traveller community who are looking to progress to third level.

THE TRAVELLING COMMUNITY

THE IRISH TRAVELLING
COMMUNITY IS A
COMMUNITY WITH A UNIQUE SET OF CULTURAL VALUES AND A LONG
HISTORY OF NOMADISM,
FIRST RECORDED AS FAR
BACK AS THE 12TH CENTURY (AS CITED IN
DEVINE & MCGILLICUDDY, 2019).

The community has a shared language that is commonly known as Gammon or Cant which was historically used in the teaching and passing on of cultural practices and customs to future generations (Hayes, 2006). According to the most recent Census, there are roughly 31,000 Travellers in Ireland, making up just 0.7 percent of the Irish population. Within this cohort, over 70% are under the age of 34 (Central Statistics Office, 2017). Yet, despite being such a small community, the health and wellbeing of many Travellers is poor. Research relating to the health of the community notes how Traveller babies are 3.6 times more likely to die in comparison to babies from the settled community. Furthermore, the mortality rates of male Travellers have risen over the last decade of the twentieth century and the first decade of the twenty-first. Suicide rates in Traveller men are seven times that of the general population (Children's Rights Alliance, 2014; University College Dublin, 2010). These indicators of compromised mental health and suicide risk are associated with the high levels of discrimination that Travellers encounter in their daily lives, as well as the external pressure to conform and live as settled people.

THE TRAVELLING COMMUNITY AND EDUCATION

FOR MANY CHILDREN WITHIN THE TRAVELLING COMMUNITY, EDUCATION IS VIEWED AS A POSITIVE PURSUIT. HOWEVER, FOR MANY OLDER TRAVELLERS, A FEAR OF FORMAL EDUCATION EXISTS, NAMELY THAT FORMAL EDUCATION WILL RESULT IN THE LOSS OF TRAVELLER TRADITIONS AND CULTURE; MANY TRAVELLERS HAVING A SUSPICION OF AUTHORITY THAT HAS BEEN CREATED AFTER YEARS OF PERSECUTION (BOWERS, 2013; COMMUNITY CONSULTANTS, 2018).

This fear and mistrust in the education system is understandable considering the historical poor treatment of the Travelling Community by the Irish State, both history; between 1963 and 1983, various governments prioritised the assimilation of the Travelling Community into mainstream settled culture (McDonagh, 2016). The 1963 Commission on Itinerancy Report described Travellers as “a problem to be solved” and shamed the Travelling Community for their unique culture, traditions and ways of living. This institutional discrimination contributed to the further marginalisation of the Travelling Community where discriminatory practices and views were continuously reiterated thus becoming standardised in society (Leahy, 2014). In the 1970s, some progress was made with the introduction of Resource Teachers for Travellers (RTTs), however, this was phased out in 2011 (Department of Education and Skills, 2011). Since the phasing out of RTTs, Travellers continue to experience discrimination in all education systems across the State with the school experience being distinctly different for Traveller students in comparison to students from the settled community with low teacher expectations, discrimination and the lack of availability of culturally relevant material being cited as some of the issues that limit the full participation and potential of Travellers in education (Carr, 2017).

TRAVELLER EDUCATIONAL PROGRESSION THROUGH STATISTICS

JUST 13% OF TRAVELLER CHILDREN COMPLETE THEIR SECOND-LEVEL EDUCATION IN COMPARISON TO 92% OF THOSE FROM THE SETTLED COMMUNITY. JUST 1% OF TRAVELLERS PROGRESS TO THIRD LEVEL EDUCATION (WATSON, KENNY & MCGINNITY, 2017).

According to a recent report on Travellers in FET by SOLAS, the Further Education and Training Authority, figures reveal the total number of Traveller enrolments in FET to be 1,212, making up roughly 4% of the population of the Travelling community with 60% of these being under 25 years old. Of those Traveller enrolments, 41.2% had only basic primary education or lower. Roughly two-thirds (914) enrollees reported having attained a level of education corresponding to a lower primary or secondary education prior to joining FET. This report found that the majority of those enrolled were unemployed, with 59% found to be unemployed for over a year or more. This study also found Youthreach programmes and adult literacy courses had the greatest number of Traveller enrolments (Dulee-Kinsolving & Guerin, 2018).

POSITIVE PROGRESS

Some progress has been made in relation to Traveller education through the introduction of the 2017 National Traveller and Roma Inclusion Strategy (NTRIS) 2017 – 2021. This report was published by the Department of Justice and Equality and developed with the involvement of the Department of Education and Skills. In the NTRIS 2017-2021 Strategy there are 149 actions covering the themes of Cultural Identity and Education. The key education-related actions proposed through NTRIS include Travellers being supported in key areas including education, employment and economic development. The plan aims to develop education resources, the culture and history of the Travelling Community for use in primary, post primary and adult education settings. This is an important development with much research stressing the importance of the inclusion of non-dominant cultures in learning. Furthermore, NTRIS details actions on improving access, participation and outcomes for Travellers in education that are equal to those for the majority population. In 2017 the Travelling Community was recognised as an ethnic minority group by the Irish State (O'Halloran and Regan, 2017).

CONCLUSION

The human desire for group acceptance is not just a source of physical and psychological well-being, it is also a source of identity (Schacter et al., 2012). For the Irish Travelling community, their ethnicity, culture and traditions are unique to them with research findings strengthening the enduring need for these to be acknowledged, accepted and encouraged in the Irish Education systems (Forkan, 2006; Hamilton et al., 2012). As educators, it is crucial that an inclusive and positive learning environment is created through the development of a learning space for the mutual engagement of all. We hope that the voices and stories from the Travelling Community in the following sections of this handbook will support educators in doing so by providing insight into the many socio-cultural and economic factors that influence educational disadvantage for Irish Travellers. We also hope that educators will have a greater understanding of things to consider when working alongside students from the Travelling Community.

The Lost Homework	Sonny devotes his weekend to helping his neighbours and fellow Travellers with a variety of tasks. He uses many skills, from calculating the amount of fuel needed for a journey, to restoring a caravan. In fact, the only thing he doesn't do over the weekend is his homework – his workbook is missing! What will his teacher say?	4-9 Years	Richard O'Neill	Book Link
Polonius the Pit Pony	When Polonius the pit pony escapes from the coal mine he's worked in all his life, he joins a family of Travellers. Although he enjoys the freedom and the fresh air that their lifestyle offers, he wishes he could give something back to the family in return. When the chance arrives for him to do something to help, he rises to the challenge and uses his intelligence and skills to save the day. Based on true events and retold by a master of the oral tradition, this story bears witness to the Traveller values of independence, initiative, courage and hard work.	4- 9 Years	Richard O'Neill	Book Link

TEACHER TRAINING PROGRAMMES

Programme Name	About	Suitable for	Link
TCAT	TCAT is an initiative that offers quality client-based training in Traveller culture. It is delivered by Travellers who are experienced trainers and have completed a special course in TCAT training delivery. It is coordinated by a steering group comprising all Traveller led organisations in Cork city and county as well as representatives from the HSE. The training is part of an overall Interagency strategy to support better service provision for Travellers.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> > Teachers > Students 	Click here to learn more
Yellow Flag	The Yellow Flag Programme is a practical programme that supports primary and secondary schools to become more inclusive of all cultures and ethnicities, celebrate diversity and challenge racism and discrimination. The Yellow Flag Programme provides a practical series of 8 steps that brings issues of interculturalism, equality and diversity into the whole-school programme and allows schools to apply them to the day to day running of the school. On successfully completing the following 8 steps and being evaluated externally, the school is awarded its Yellow Flag in recognition of its work in promoting diversity & inclusion. The award is published locally, and the school can fly its flag with pride and use the logo on its official correspondence.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> > Teachers 	Click Here to Learn More
